

Trinity Health Pediatrics

Oncology Office under construction

Ophthalmology Office under construction

“Good Vibes” example

FLEx:Trinity Health Artwork

Work samples

Middle School/Art

Storyline:

What Are You Creating?

- In the Art Room
- In the Community
- For Your Future

Throughlines:

The discipleship habits of Community Building and Servant Workers were strengthened as students affirmed their unity in Christ, portraying themselves as creators inspired by God's loving care. Their visual imagery, crafted for all viewers, particularly pediatric patients, expresses this care. This shared beauty fosters community by evoking gratitude for God's creation and its universal gift to humanity.

Deep Hope:

It is my deep hope that we recognize our unity with God

- WE are Made in God's image
- We are Creators
- We, Along with God Create our world

Long-term learning targets:

- I express God's love through my art, sharing His message and creation story with others.
- I create beauty that transcends mere aesthetics, serving as an uplifting message from both me and God.

FLEx Story:

Real needs: Trinity Health, Oakland reached out to the OCS Art department requesting student art work to be on permanent display in the new Trinity Health Pediatric Office Building.

Real people: Hospital administration working with the OCS Middle School Art department to provide artwork.

Real work: OCS Middle School Art students created a variety of artwork to be permanently displayed on two walls in both the pediatric Oncology floor and on the pediatric ophthalmology floor.

Student Reflections:

"My role in this project was to make a beautiful art piece so that I can bring joy to the kids in the children's hospital and hopefully I was able to achieve that goal. This project also can be related to a habit of living we have been learning about all year, beauty maker. This relates to being a beauty maker because we are making beautiful art for the kids in the hospital to enjoy."

-Elliana H.

"I got the role of drawing in a heart that would say one word that can express emotion or love to the people who reads it. Since this art is going in a health hospital, these pieces of art will make patients and doctors feel better and think more about God's creation. This art shows good vibes by having a nice word in a heart with color in it. The heart can show love, the word can show the love and how it could bring in joy."

-Logan W

Teacher Reflections:

Students, embodying the role of real artists, address the genuine need for art on Trinity Health's pediatric oncology floor, crafting the "Good Vibes" series to bring joy and comfort to patients and families. This initiative showcases art's profound impact, fostering connection and beauty amidst adversity. By engaging students as "Real Artists," it cultivates empathy and purpose, highlighting our unity with God as creators of our world, offering hope and light during challenging times.

Nina Caruso, MS & HS Art Educator
ncaruso@oaklandchristian.com

3075 Shimmons Road, Auburn Hills, MI 48326
(248) 373-2700 info@oaklandchristian.com