Academics

We are not just learning about math, reading, history, and singing at Rock Valley Christian School. We are learning about God and His world. And we're discovering how we fit into His plan for our lives. We work to be intentional about focusing on God and His Word throughout our day at RVCS. Whether it be studying science or language, performing math equations, or learning a new song, the faculty and staff strive to always bring it back to God, to use learning and the work that's done to glorify Him. Everything we do at Rock Valley Christian School comes from a Christian perspective, our belief that God is the Creator and Sustainer of everything.

RVCS recognizes that all students are unique creations of God and have varying levels of ability. The school is committed to providing resources and opportunities for students who require extra support with their work. Likewise, the enrichment program serves students who might need an extra challenge.

Community

Rock Valley Christian School enjoys a tight-knit community, which many members say feels like “one big family.” The student body is made up of a mix of students whose parents and grandparents are alumni as well as first-generation students. Parents are highly involved in their students’ lives and consistently provide prayer and financial support for the school. The school’s parent organization, ARROWS, provides a way for families to get to know each other through a variety of activities while raising funds for the school.

Facility

RVCS was founded in 1911 and opened its doors to students in the fall of 1912. The original building was used until 1919, when students moved to the current location. Since then, the community has continually supported the school in campaigns for upgrades, expansions, and improvements. Most recently, major contributions from the community helped repair the current building after extreme floods this past summer.

“You don’t have a school like this without community support.”
